Allies Hope to Find Solution For West Berlin

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

GENEVA (AP) — The Western powers today were reported "willing to discuss Berlin apart from their package plan for Germany in an attempt to break the deadlock with the Soviets."

The Big Four foreign ministers conference, recessed over the weekend with the Soviets still insisting on the signing of a peace treaty with the two German states above everything else.

But hope persisted among Western diplomats of finding a formula for agreement on the future of divided Berlin. The crisis triggered by the Soviet demand for Western withdrawal from West Berlin is expected to move steadily to the fore as the second week of the conference develops.

Whether there is any basis for agreement, however, remains to be seen, for the Soviet Union has so far stood firm on its demand for demilitarization of West Berlin and the Western powers are standing pat on their refusal to abandon the Communist-encircled city.

Secretary of State Christian A. Tarter is flying to Rome today for a quick one-day goodwill visit. French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville is going to Paris for consultations with President Charles de Gaulle. Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko and British Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd are staying in Geneva.

Gromyko and his advisers—presumably in long-range consultation with the Kremlin—were reported preparing a point-by-point reply to the Western package plan. Gromyko has already turned down the package as a whole, denouncing it as a "jumble of unrelated issues which would make any progress here impossible."

Western officials say he may pull various points out of the package and seek to discuss them individually. Berlin is one such issue. Gromyko, though, Communist spokesmen have rebuffed the specific Western proposal for merging West and Communist East Berlin into a single city under four power guarantees.

Another possibility, foreseen by Western experts is that Gromyko may try to extract further concessions from the Western powers regarding direct negotiations between East and West German representatives.

House to Send Sub-Group to Examine Ballots

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House Elections Subcommittee today decided to send several members to Little Rock for a cursory examination of ballots in connection with an investigation into the election of Rep. Dale Alford (D-Ark.).

Chairman Robert T. Ashmore (D-SO) said after a closed meeting of the subcommittee that no date has been set but it probably will be about June 1.

"We discussed plans for the investigation of the case in detail," Ashmore said. "And plan to send a few members with counsel to make a cursory examination of ballots and papers."

Ashmore said probably three subcommittee members will go to Little Rock for the initial examination. He said he may be among them.

Ashmore said June 22 is the tentative date for counting election ballots.

In the election, Alford, a write-in candidate, defeated Brooks Hays, veteran Democratic congressman. Hays has since been nominated by President Eisenhower to be a member of the Tennessee state authority.

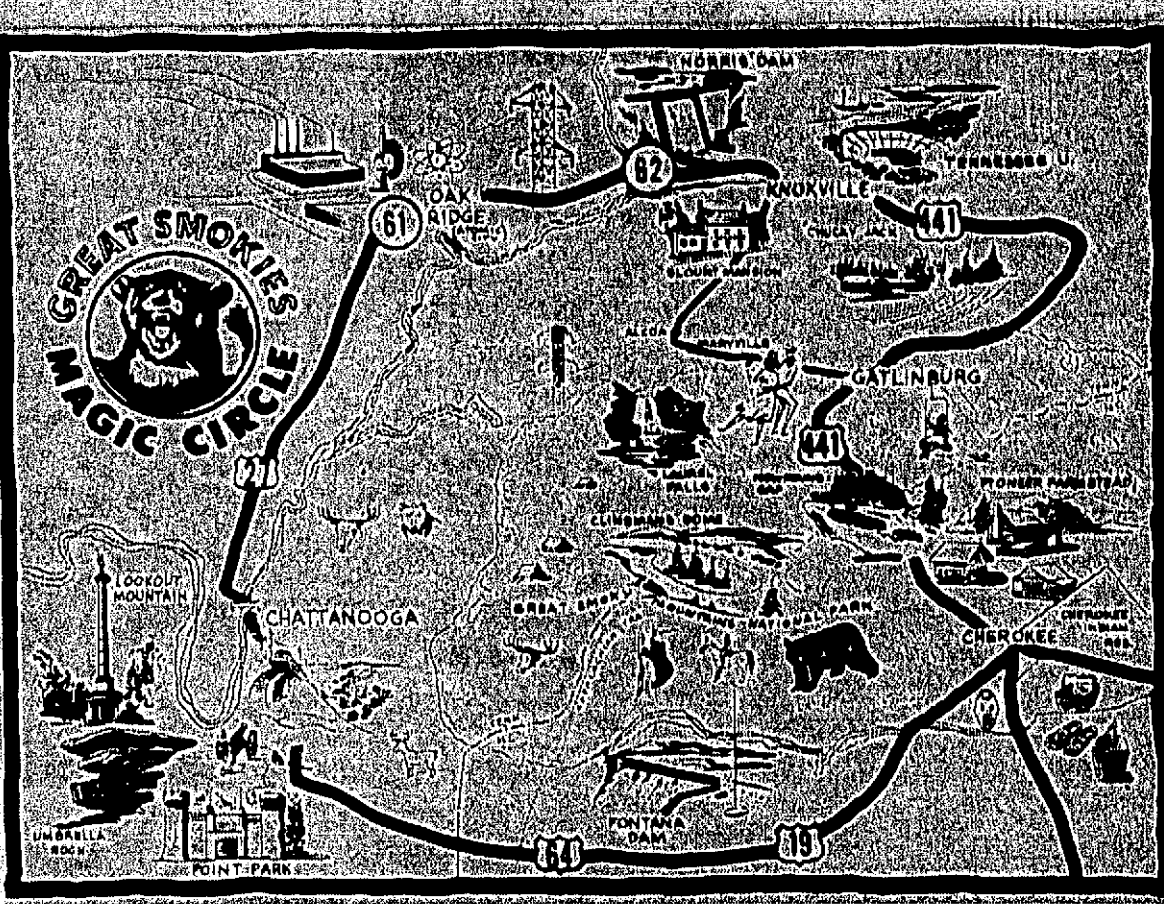

Ballots used in the election now are in the custody of the Federal Grand Jury at Little Rock. The subcommittee has been granted permission to inspect them.

"We're trying to get a convenient date," Ashmore said of the initial Little Rock trip. "It probably will be around the first of June, depending on legislation here."

After this examination is made, he said, the subcommittee then will make definite plans and arrangements for the June 22 session.

Ashmore said at that time "it may be necessary to subpoena some people but we can't tell about those things until we examine the papers and ballots."

Great Smoky Mountain Park One of America's Greatest Scenic Spots; 3 Million Visit It

BORDER COUNTRY, playground for Tennessee and North Carolina is Great Smoky Mountains National Park. Famed for its beauty and bears, three million visitors are expected this year. Revolving around this center of scenic grandeur is a Magic Circle of great cosmopolitan cities and such man-created wonders as the great TVA dams and lakes, such as Norris and Fontana, and the Atomic City of Oak Ridge. You can start your Magic Circle to the Great Smokies from Chattanooga, the city with a million-dollar mountain and rich in history and homes. Then drive north to Oak Ridge to see the American Museum of Atomic Energy, Knoxville, home of the University of Tennessee, Gatlinburg, resort town, gateway to the Great Smokies. Nature has planted this cool "mountain Eden" in a bounteous way with flowers, shrubs, trees that provide vivid color from early spring to late fall.

Editor's Note: This is the 24th in a series of suggested highway tour maps which the Hope Star is publishing weekly. The series will cover the South and Southwest during the Fall and Winter months and Northern sections in the Spring. This is excellent material to cut out and paste up for reference when planning your vacation trip.

By EDWARD COLLIER

Scenic grandeur, cosmopolitan cities and man-created wonders of science and engineering are within the Magic Circle that revolves around Great Smoky Mountains National Park.

Famed for its beauty and its bears, three million visitors are expected this summer to set an other national park record for this pivotal playground of the Tennessee-North Carolina border country.

The blue haze that caresses its distant peaks and valleys, even when the sky is filled with billowing white clouds and sunlight filters through the trees, makes the Great Smokies unforgettable. Cool day nights, availability to great cities and every type of recreation make it a desirable weekend and vacation goal.

Million-Dollar Mountain

Highways lead to the Park from every direction; I started my Magic Circle trip from Chattanooga. Busy and thriving with commerce, it has come as by-products of the great TVA dam and power plants, you still will remember Chattanooga as the city with a million dollar mountain.

Every night there is a mad dash of cars from the city to the crisscross roads that make Lookout Mountain resemble a haphazardly wound ball of twine. Your first impression is incredulity that this wooded mountain-top could encompass so many fine homes, old and new, each vying for a chunk of the view. Then you discover a battlefield park, six churches, two country clubs, schools, motels and hotels. A portion of the mountain is across the Georgia state line.

Castle-like stone gates lead into Point Park, where a battery of Confederate cannon still stand in prominent guard, high above Moccasin Bend of the Tennessee River. From the terrace of the Adolph S. Ochs Observatory and Museum, you have a comprehensive view of the battlefield of Chattanooga. Umbrella Rock is a popular subject for pictures.

Thrilling View

At dusk, when the lights of the city below begin to shimmer, there is a thrilling view from the observation tower of the Incline Railway Station. Claimed to be the steepest route in the country, the cable cars have been a top tourist lure for half a century.

Other highly publicized admission attractions include Rock City, where man and nature have combined to produce startling rock garden effects; and 145-foot high Ruby Falls, inside the Lookout Mountain Caves.

Your Magic Circle to the Great Smokies goes through Oak Ridge, the Atomic City. The countryside has a placid pastoral beauty, the processing plants and other structures are unimpressive. But there is a feeling of excitement. Perhaps it is due to the startling 24-inch billboards with aluminum

President Will Visit Air Force Academy Today

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower will visit the Air Force Academy's first graduating class and set this first on the ground look at the school which nestles at the eastern edge of the Rocky Mountains.

Accompanying the President from Washington for four are Air Force Secretary James H. Douglas and Gen. James D. White, Air Force chief of staff.

Also going along are the President's son and daughter-in-law, Army Major and Mrs. John Eisenhower, and their four youngsters. The President's grandchildren are David, 11, Barbara, Anne, 9, Susan, 7, and Mary Jean, 2.

Eisenhower is expected to remain at the academy for at least a couple of hours. From there the party will fly north to Denver, a 15-minute hop.

Denver is the home of Mrs. Eisenhower's mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, who was 81 last Wednesday. The First Lady already is at the Doud residence. She arrived earlier in the week by train.

All of the Eisenhowers plan to fly back to Washington Sunday. This will be the President's third visit to Denver since he suffered a heart attack there in September 1955.

Denver is situated at mile-high altitude and since his heart attack the President's doctor, Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, has been cautious about Eisenhower's going at such altitudes.

San Francisco (AP) — Two scientists disclosed today they are taking steps to prevent reflected shock waves from breaking windows and causing other damage in Soviet Siberia when they use three nuclear bombs to create a new harbor in Alaska.

As planned by the U.S. government, five nuclear bombs will be set off, probably in 1961, to excavate a harbor in Kotzebue Sound, on the northwestern Alaska coast.

The site is only about 200 miles from Siberia. The researchers said they had learned that under certain conditions shock waves could carry off upper air layers and return to earth more than 300 miles away with damaging effect.

Blast waves from the bombs ride on air-ducting layers, said J. W. Reed and H. W. Church of the Sandia Corp. They addressed the second Plowshare Symposium on Industrial and Scientific Uses of Nuclear Explosions. The symposium is sponsored by the Atomic Energy Commission and the University of California Lawrence Radiation Laboratory.

It was these air-ducting layers that caused shock waves from the Nevada atom bomb tests to leap from over the immediately surrounding area and come down 70 miles or more away on Las Vegas and other inhabited places with window-bursting effect, Reed and Church said.

There would be one chance in 10, they added, that it could carry enough pressure 70 miles to break most windows and some doors.

During the spring of 1961 the scientists plan to establish the air ducting pattern around the Kotzebue area with conventional explosives. The idea will be to protect inhabited Alaska areas as well as Siberia.

Pop Bottle Robber Gets Six Years

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP) — Pop bottle robber Joseph Clinton Johnson, 23, pleaded guilty yesterday and was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary.

Johnson told officers he pretended a concealed soft drink bottle was a pistol in holding up and robbing a drive-in ice cream stand of about $300 Tuesday night.

Japanese Sub Is Moved From Display

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP) — The battered hull of a Japanese suicide submarine of the kind which attacked Pearl Harbor has been removed from display at the American naval base here. Capt. Kemp Tolley of Monkton, Md., said it had "only served to keep alive the unhappy story of Pearl Harbor."

Man Really Had A Glass Eye

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (AP) — Attorney A. A. Semmell, defending a salesman accused of drunk driving, heard a policeman say Thursday the defendant was "glass-eyed" when arrested.

"Semmell smiled and asked, 'Would you say I was glass-eyed, too?' The policeman said he wouldn't."

"That's funny," Semmell said. "I do have a glass eye."

The defendant was found innocent.

Thought He Could Buy Friendship

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "I could not make friends with the other boys," the 13-year-old said.

"I thought if I could get money I could buy them things, and then they would like me."

That, the boy told police, was why he stole from 18 houses. His loot included radios, watches and clocks, knives, a pistol and $145.50 in cash.

He and another 13 year old who helped him sell the loot were released Thursday to their parents' custody.

Did Exactly What He Said He Would

HARTFORD, Conn. (AP) — Matt the R. Rini, father of three girls during 12 years of marriage, says today: "If I ever have a boy I'll write it in the sky. Thursday he wrote a skywriter to do just that. The message: 'It's a boy!'" — was spread for 20 miles. Said the equally proud mother of Matt the R. Rini, father of three girls do things in a big way.

May Is a Month of Roses and a Look at Gardens in Hope Plainly Demonstrate the Fact

By MARY ANITA LASETER

May is the month of roses, and a look at the gardens in Hope will tell you why that is true. During this month the delicate, yet sturdy, "flower" reaches its height of glorious beauty. Its blooms, in profusion almost everywhere, continually fill the fragrant blossoming is not confined to one single month, though.

In our particular area, the rose has become the "Mother's Day flower." Regardless of the fact that the carnation is nationally recognized as official floral symbol of that occasion, the subject of roses is national, there has been a "rosy" upon our cover all becoming our national flower.

America's favorite and most beautiful flower grows all over the northern hemisphere of the world, and it is the blooming representative of such far distant lands as England, Poland, Iran, Turkey, Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Romania, and Honduras.

"A rose is a rose is a rose," Gertrude Stein wrote and not in a craze of repetition either. She knew and wanted to demonstrate that nothing is as descriptive of a rose as the word itself. The pioneers of our country recognized its beauty when they carried slips of roses out West. There just might have been a rose or two on the Mayflower, too.

In reading of roses it was discovered that the island of Rhodes was not named for a person, "by that name or for paths of transportation" but for ROSES. Something must have happened in translating the word into English. The first word any Latin student learns is "rosa" or "rose." And the family name, Roosevelt, is of Dutch origin with its first syllable meaning "rose." Hence, its pronunciation.

As for the thorns on roses, well, much has been said about their being the price which must be paid for the magnificent blossoms. Mother Nature knew how to protect one of her most beloved children, and no amount of careful human cultivation has been able to eliminate the spine-sharp needles.

The rose is a very old flower and, in the course of years, it has been used as a commodity of trade, pictured on stamps, and placed in many coats of arms. In West Grove, Pa., there is still a custom, started by William Penn, whereby house rent may be paid by "one red rose yearly if demanded."

The Queen of the Garden, as a poet designated it, is "true blue" in several ways, but not in its color. We are all familiar with the reds, pinks, whites, yellows, and combinations of those colors in this flower. Now, there are a green, a lavender and white, and even a purple one, but no blue rose has yet been cultivated.

A rose carries in its proud blossom the majestic splendor of an orchid and the commonplace humbleness of a daisy. No wonder it was always a rose which the lady fair tossed from her balcony to her prince charming.

Attorneys Offer to Aid Beauty Queen

LITTLETON, Colo. (AP) — Attorneys from five states have offered to defend Dixie Ann Gottfried, 30, a former beauty queen winner changed with armed robbery.

The charges were filed in Arapahoe County District Court Thursday. They stem from a drug store robbery in which $131 in cash and narcotics were taken.

Dist. Judge Harold Harrison named a local attorney to defend Mrs. Gottfried.

Bill Maragos, chief investigator for the Arapahoe County Sheriff's Office, said attorneys from Baton Rouge, La., Chicago, New York City, Louisville, Ky., and Oklahoma City had offered to come to this Denver suburb at their own expense, to defend Mrs. Gottfried.

Called Opposition to Strauss Spite Attack

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Norris Cotton (R-NH) described the opposition to Lewis L. Strauss for secretary of commerce today as an example of a spite attack.

"With business on the upturn and the easing of the Berlin tension," he said, "it's open season for political sniping and petty feuding."

Cotton is a member of the Senate Commerce Committee which has had Strauss nomination for the cabinet post under consideration since Jan. 17.

Sen. Warren G. Magnuson (D-Wash.), the committee chairman, held out the possibility that the hearings might end today with rebuttal testimony at an afternoon session from Strauss and Sen. Clinton P. Anderson (D-NM), one of Strauss' chief critics.

New Missile May Unfold Wings to Fly

WASHINGTON (AP) — A missile that unfolds its wings to fly may be used aboard a new version of the B32 heavy jet bomber to confuse the enemy, Boeing Airplane Co. said today.

The missile, the McDonnell Quail, is 10 feet long, resembles a midjet pilotless airplane. But when the Quail darts away at the same speed as the bomber, it is still secret, the Quail shows up on enemy radar screens as the same size as the bomber. Thus, an enemy would be unable to determine whether it was a big bomber or the decoy.

Keeps Calling for His Lost Dog

JACKSON, Mich. (AP) — Charles Rosebrook was driving his truck through Jackson last April when his dog, Spotty, jumped from the cab at a stop and failed to return. Rosebrook, 53, was injured in an accident a few days later and now is in a Marion, Ohio, hospital. The doctors say he keeps calling for his lost dog.

They ask that if anyone knows where Spotty, an English setter is to let them know. They say Spotty could help Rosebrook as a coyer.

Officials Say U. S. Will Not Devalue $

WASHINGTON (AP) — Treasury officials say the United States will not devalue the dollar despite the increasing flow of gold from the country.

As of last Tuesday, the Treasury reported Friday, there was about 20 billion dollars worth of gold on hand. This meant that almost 200 million dollars worth moved to foreign countries in about six weeks. On Tuesday alone, the United States shipped 10 million dollars worth.

The move pushed up the price of gold mining stocks Friday on the New York Stock Exchange. In London, the price of gold bullion in the free world reached a high point since postwar trading began five years ago.

The obvious implication was that speculation expected the United States to raise the price it will pay for gold, another way of saying it will devalue the dollar.

International trade accounts for the shift of gold. The United States has been importing large amounts of goods and services. But there has been a big drop in exports. And it is continuing.

Because of this, the past year and a half has seen the United States pay out more money than it is taking in. To balance these international payments, gold has been taken from the United States and transferred to foreign banks.

Salesman Kills Wife, Turns Gun on Himself

By GORMON A. GLOVER

LIMERICK, Maine (AP) — A brooding businessman shot and killed his wife and then killed a police officer and wounded two state troopers before he was subdued in a five-hour gun battle with nearly 100 officers Thursday night.

Gordon E. Hamlin, 51, upset over the recent loss of his furniture manufacturing business, shot himself as police closed in on his cellar holdout with bullets and tear gas.

Also dead were Hamlin's wife, Rose, 40, and Westbrook Police Chief Pierre Hamois, 54, both killed by shotgun blasts.

State Trooper Stephen A. Tedman, 32, of Saco, was critically wounded by Hamlin's shotgun in the stomach and leg.

The scene of the blistering shooting was a quiet Maine crossroads settlement, set near a mill pond about a mile from the center of Limerick, a village of 4,000 population 30 miles east of Portland.

Witnesses and police pieced together this story:

At 4:15 p.m. as Rose Hamlin crossed the street to visit Mrs. Jessie Mitchell, Hamlin shouted to her from his front door and fired once with a shotgun.

As Mrs. Hamlin raced up the front steps of the Mitchell home, Hamlin fired again and his wife fell mortally wounded on the front porch.

"He greeted me with both barrels of the gun," Parker said.

Although wounded, Parker radioed for reinforcement and stayed to assist arriving troopers, city police and game wardens.

The officers then stationed themselves behind their cruisers and in houses on each side of Hamlin's home, firing with rifles and pistols.

DOROTHY DIX

Lou Should Learn to Act Like Lady

By DOROTHY DIX

"Dear Dorothy Dix: I've been having trouble with one of the drivers on our school bus. He's married and very cute. It all began when I tried to make an impression on him by wisecracking in an unkind way. He acted the same toward me but the other day he put my girl friend and me off the bus for being too noisy. Of course we were only trying to attract his attention. I'd like to be good friends with him. Since my way didn't succeed, can you suggest another — Lou"

"Dear Lou: Only a centipede could start off on as many wrong feet as you have. Bus drivers are for driving, not for flirting. The man who handles a school bus has a tremendous responsibility and can't take time out for flirting with flirty school girls. The lives of many youngsters are in his care and he can't pay attention to individuals. If one of his passengers is rowdy and a menace to his driving, the objectionable one should be evicted. His job is to get you kids safely to and from school for an education. He tends to his work; you should give more attention to yours. Somewhere along the line someone should teach you ladylike manners."

"Dear Dorothy Dix: Although I'm only 12, I have a problem. I have three very close friends: two are nice, but the third, who lives across the street from me, is inclined to be sarcastic and jealous. She makes comments that embarrass me, such as, 'Do you like the way Myra fixes her hair? I think it's awful' or, 'Latvia's new dress must have been bought in a bargain basement, and reduced at that. It's horrible.' Of course, she thinks the way she dresses is quite perfect. Should I drop her or try to change her? She completes a foursome for us and can be very pleasant company in a group — Dolly"

"Dear Dolly: Anyone who recognizes social faults in her contemporaries and would like to correct them, is a true crusader. If your girl friend allows her bad habits to keep her company through life, she's going to be an unpopular girl — and a worse fate I wouldn't wish on anyone. When she makes snide comments about others, tell her frankly you don't think it's nice and that you refuse to continue any conversation along that line. She may resent it at first but let her know that she's gambled with her social future and she'll change."

"Dear Dorothy Dix: I'm a girl of 14 with a king-size crush on an 18-year-old boy. My friends all say I haven't a chance with him. My cousin is having a party soon and I'd like to invite him. I don't know if he'll accept, but isn't it worth trying? — Norah"

"Dear Norah: A king-size crush is worth a king-size chance. You have nothing to lose by asking him to the party and, if luck smiles on you and he accepts, you've gained everything."

Rt. 4 Hope, Boy, Gregory, De Wayne.

Mr. and Mrs. Murray David Nelson, Hope, girl, Theresa Marie.

Figures are in millions of passenger miles

ASTRONOMICAL—People are still on the move, in case anyone doubted it. Passenger-miles in all kinds of transportation registered a slight overall gain of 1 percent in 1958 over 1957, according to the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. Chart above lists the records of the major carriers. The figure for automobiles alone is equal to about 2,700,000 round trips to the moon.

Stops Train When Rape Is Threatened

NEW YORK (AP)—A woman who said a youth tried to rape her, pulled the emergency cord on a subway train Wednesday night and halted it. Another train ran into it. Twenty-eight persons were hurt, none seriously.

Lucille "Lo" Bianco, 43, said a blond youth about 17 years old entered a car in which she and an elderly man were seated. She said the youth slipped off her skirt and tried to tear away her undergarments.

She screamed. She said the elderly man covered in terror. At the next stop, Mrs. Lo Bianco said, she tried to get off the train but was hauled back by the youth. Fighting free as the train pulled away from the station, she pulled the emergency signal.

As the train ground to a halt, another train, its brakes on, skidded into the first one. Some 150 persons were thrown from their seats. Fourteen were treated at the scene and 14 were taken to Coney Island Hospital.

The woman's attacker fled.

VIENNA (AP)—The vanguard of some 200,000 Sudeten Germans invaded Vienna today in preparation for a four-day rally that has raised the threat of Communist-inspired disorder.

Led by the Czechoslovak government, the Communists have protested the holding in neutral Austria of the annual convention of representatives of the three million Germans expelled from Czechoslovakia after World War II. The Sudeten formed the Fifth Column spearhead for Hitler's annexation of that country. The convention opens Saturday.

NEW YORK (AP)—A final decree, setting all outstanding litigation in the sinking of the liner Andrea Doria was signed Thursday by Federal Judge John W. Cleary.

The ship went down off Nantucket after a collision July 25, 1956, with the liner Stockholm. Fifty lives were lost.

There were 3,322 damage claims for injuries or deaths, aggregating 116 million dollars. They eventually were settled for about six million dollars.

AAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—A Chinese Nationalist news agency reported today that two divisions of Soviet troops arrived last week in Red China's Sinkiang Province, bordering Tibet.

The T'aipei ministry claimed its information came from underground agents in Shanghai. The agency said the Chinese Communists invited the Soviets to send the divisions — one infantry, the other Cossack cavalry — to help cope with any big uprising that might break out.

HAVANA (AP)—Fidel Castro Jr., 9-year-old son of Cuba's revolutionary prime minister, was under observation of doctors to day as a result of injuries suffered in an automobile accident. The first examination, however, indicated the boy was not seriously hurt.

The child suffered painful body contusions.

Prime Minister Castro rushed to the hospital to see his son, then kept an appointment to participate in a ceremony.

Dear Dorothy Dix: If I'm talking to a boy and another girl me should I go — Juan

Dear Juan: You shouldn't go anywhere. If you are talking to one boy and another one wants your attention, he should come over to talk to you. Then you decide whose company you prefer and bid a gracious goodbye to the other.

Pioneer Exhibit

On at the ranger station and Oconaltee Museum are weapons, tools and furniture made by the self-reliant people who came to the area more than 100 years ago. Here is the Pioneer Farmstead where authentic structures have been moved from various places to depict the way these early settlers lived. Everything is in its proper place. The splendor of the proper place. The splendor of the proper place. The splendor of the proper place.

At the town of Cherokee, North Carolina's entrance to the Park is a reservation where white men teach Indians the handicraft skills that have been lost. Today the Cherokee creations are valued by tourists, particularly good are the mocassins, bead-work, delicately woven baskets and hand-carved beads. These craftsmen welcome visitors at their small factory, reached by an unmarked two-mile gravel road cut at town.

Unto These Hills, a drama of the Cherokees, is presented nightly except Monday during the summer by a cast of 140 headed by the Playmakers of the University of North Carolina and including Cherokees in principal roles. It is staged outdoors at the Mountaineer Theatre, near the Cherokee Museum.

The Magic Circle back to Chattanooga is completed via the spectacular Nantahala gorge on U.S. 19 then via U.S. 64 through one of the least visited areas in the southern mountains.

Two Killed in Separate Wrecks

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. (AP)—A 10-year-old girl and a 65-year-old farmer were killed in separate accidents yesterday.

Coyne Jasper, was fatally injured when his plow horse dragged him about 50 yards on his farm near Hot Springs. Jasper died shortly after arrival at a hospital.

Charles had driven Evonne and a sister, Karren, 9, home from dancing school. Evonne fell under the wheels as Charles drove away from the house.

Parents of the children are Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Johnson.

News Briefs

LONDON (AP) - Moscow radio said the Soviet Union's Sputnik III, launched on Oct. 10, had been ejected to a position in the orbit throughout the summer and autumn.

The broadcast said the artificial satellite was completed more than 6,100 trips around the earth.

RANGOON, Burma (AP) - The newspaper "The Union" said today that Soviet Ambassador Alex. Shtromov, who has had a stormy month in Rangoon, has been recalled to Moscow. The Tribune gave no source for its information.

Soviet-Burmese relations fell to a low point when Col. Mikhail Strigun, military attaché at the embassy, was hauled out of Rangoon on a Communist airplane May 3. Several Burmese newsmen were roughed up by embassy personnel to prevent questioning of the attaché, who apparently tried to get political asylum here after a suicide attempt.

The presentation was made at a dinner by the foundation's chairman, Adm. Felix B. Stump, former U.S. commander in chief in the Pacific.

WARRIOR BASIN

BY LESLIE ERNENWEIN

By LESLIE ERNENWEIN

Furlong found the coral gate and stood beside it. Presently observing a faint sliver of lamp light that showed in faintly chink ing on the cabin's wall, he thought: Soon.

But he stood there, tightly expectant, for 10 minutes, then an other 10, and no one came out to feed the ponies.

Shokey snail came to him, and he guessed that breakfast was being cooked, but still no one left the cabin. He was puzzled. Furlong sought for an explanation and could find none.

It was light enough now so that he could see the ponies in the corral. They hadn't been fed. They stood there waiting expect antly.

Furlong moved away from the gate, choosing a woodpile near the haystack for concealment. The sky was clear this morning; there would be sunlight within half an hour. He was waiting be hind the shoulder high stack of firewood when a man came from the cabin—a man he identified at once as Cleo Veto.

Furlong waited until Veto reached for the pitchfork. Then he stepped out and said, "Veto."

It was characteristic of Veto's foreman that he revealed no surprise in the way he turned and drew his hand from the pitchfork handle as if deciding against using it. His voice was devoid of emotion or excitement when he said, "So it's you."

Furlong wondered if the men in the cabin could hear their voices. Impatient to have this settled, he said, "I told you I'd have a gun next time, remember?"

Veto nodded. His mackinaw was unbuttoned, his right hand within three inches of his holstered pistol.

"Well, I've got one," Furlong said.

But instead of grabbing for his gun, Veto's foreman turned deliberately and reached for the pitchfork. "Maybe this isn't the day for it," he said finally.

"On yes," said Furlong, in sisted, and saw a blur of motion as Veto's hand darted to holster.

The lathy man made a fast draw, his bullet smashing into the woodpile at Furlong's shoulder before Furlong fired. Veto whirled in a half turn, propelled by the impact of a bullet that caught him high in the chest, and fired one wild shot as he fought for balance.

Taking deliberate aim at that thin target, Furlong fired again, and seeing the way Veto went down, knew he was watching a dead man fall.

Furlong backed around the woodpile, expecting to see Veto's companions charge from the corral. But no one came out; and now Furlong noticed something. Only one riding saddle hung on the corral fence—the other two were piled saddles. Veto had come here alone, with two led ponies.

Fern was in front of the barn, cinching a saddle on the bald faced sorrel. She turned at the sound of his pony's travel and said urgently, "Jim—I was just starting out to look for you."

That made no sense to him, nor did the animation in her face. "You look like you'd inherited $7000," he said.

Fern shook her head. "You'll scarcely believe it," she warned. Then, as if it wouldn't be told fast enough, she said, "Empire inquired if your raids have put Jules Pardee out of business. He let the whole crew go the day before Christmas. All of them, including Veto and the cook."

A Tucson bank has taken over everything except the original homestead, and Edith Pardee has gone back to share that with him. Furlong asked disbelievingly. "You mean Pardee loses all those cattle—all that range you told you?"

"Grace Kimble. She thought you might be here, and wanted you to know. She said to tell you she's sorry for what happened that last night."

Furlong shrugged, not caring about it. He asked, "Where's Mae and Clay?"

"Gone to town to buy a team and some provisions. Mae can't wait to get his cabin finished."

Furlong was tempted to ask if that was when they were going to be married, but decided it was none of his business.

"You'll be building a cabin also," Fern said. "And now there will be no fear of having it burned down."

"Not by Cleo Veto," Furlong said. "I killed him this morn ing."

Fern studied him for a moment before asking, "Why don't you stay for supper?"

"Because I haven't been in vited."

That explanation altered her expression instantly. For the first time he saw something close to anger in Fern's face, and in her eyes. There was a plain note of resentment in her voice as she insisted: "You know better than that, Jim Furlong!"

As he dismounted she said ac cusingly: "If ever a man had reason to know he was welcome, you have."

And then, as if abashed by such boldness, she blushed like a school girl.

The blush, and a misty shine of unshed tears in her eyes, did something to Jim Furlong. Some thing that prompted him to reach out and take her in his arms, to say gently, "Fern, honey, I thought."

Her lips silenced him. And the pressure of her arms told him how wrong he had been.

YOUR RUNABOUT BECOMES GAMING OUT CRUISER

By WM. TYLOR MCKEOWN
Editor, Popular Boating

Distributed by NEA Service.

Owners of small boats will be "pleasing tents" aboard for the first time.

The time-honored cockpit cov er has received some new refine ments that make it more useful than ever before.

Now the small boat skipper can come in out of the rain and, by sliding a few additional zip pers, end up with private sleep ing quarters as well in his collaps ible cabin.

Today, with the family taking to the water, needless "roughing it" is no longer in style. The auto mobile convertible top is being adapted to runabouts and skiffs; a cover of waterproof canvas or plastic, mounted on a tubular metal frame, can be fastened into place in less than a minute.

Frequently called a "navy top," this sun and rain protector normally fastens along the top of the windshield, extends back over part of the cockpit, and is held in place by an adjustable strap at each side of the after edge.

For the boat with a forward deck but no windshield, both con vertible top and shield, which should be of safety glass, tem pered glass or plexiglas, may be purchased as a unit.

If the windshield is installed, construct your own folding top with fittings obtained from a marine supply house plus metal tub ing and canvas. Measure to be sure you can sit upright under the top with head room.

Tops provide vents along the front for added breeze on a warm day. If you want a custom fitted job, contact your local sail maker or convertible auto top store. With the new popularity of this cover, they will probably have had experience in making just what you want.

If you are ordering top, side curtains, plus full cockpit cover as well, have grommets added so that you may lift the after edge or the back cover on poles from each corner of the transom. Then you will have a pleasant awning under which to sit and fish, or rest from swimming.

Shaps can be added for mosqui to netting, a useful protection for a night aboard in a sheltered cove.

Don't overlook the house trailer created by your new convert ible covers. Many families load their boat on its trailer Friday evening and head out for their favorite harbor.

Along the way they pull off the road, open out the top, and climb aboard for a pleasant sleep ashore in the boat on the trailer, ready for an early morning start to the launching ramp and a week-end of fun.

Feed Control May Lead to Longer Life

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Human nu trition has reached the point where, experts feel, that by con trolled feeding, a population can be matured earlier, enjoy a longer prime of life, or extend its actual longevity.

But which of these three goals does a society want?

"They are quite different things," pointed out Dr. Robert S. Goodhart, scientific director of the National Vitamin Foundation, a nonprofit organization.

"What is optimum nutrition? It depends on what you want."

"If we and the Russians are en gaged in trying to build up big armies, we can do this by making our youths fatter, but they'll be dying of coronary attacks and other degenerative diseases in their 40s and 50s."

"The earlier an animal matures the earlier it dies."

Dr. Goodhart said it would be possible to add potential years to a child's life by keeping him thin and small and postponing the de velopment of his maturity as long as possible. But the price would be a lowered vitality.

"Later I myself would probably want to take him out and shoot him, because he would be useless to society," he said.

"The idea of merely living as long as possible is, it seems to me, a lousy ambition."

Dr. Goodhart feels the average child fares best if fed a diet that allows him to mature at his own pace rather than one that spurs him into a forced growth.

"A lot of us are concerned," he said, "about mothers who worry about the fact their child is smaller—even though he may be actually healthier—than the boy next door."

"In trying to make him grow taller by overstuffing him with calories and proteins, these mothers merely may be bringing him to his final stature."

The question is whether forced growing does anything more than bring on this early ma turity."

The rise in juvenile delinquency, Dr. Goodhart says, may be, in part at least, explained by a conflict in what American society expects of its young people.

"We are feeding them diets that mature them earlier physi cally and mentally," he said, "but at the same time we are trying to keep them children still longer emotionally."

"This is particularly true in the upper classes, which want to send their sons and daughters through college and don't like them to get married until they are well into the 20s."

This, he thinks, creates an area of explosive tension.

... how quickly tomorrow becomes today and today fades into yesterday. Yesterday this old stern wheeler was a part of today.

Like our plans and ambitions for tomorrow it drifted into yesterday. Brother, yesterday is too late... we only have today. The gang planks will soon be raised, the lines cut and off we go into yesterday... into eternity. Today you will say 'so-long' to souls you will not see tomorrow... suddenly it's too late.

Now, even today is almost gone. How about stopping in at church next Sunday. Last Sunday is now too late. Jesus said "NOW is the accepted time."

"Don't let your todays and tomorrows turn into yesterdays. Unless the Lord gives you tomorrow you have none."

YOU IN THE CHURCH THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benedictions that fortify and influence for a better citizenship and a stronger democracy. In the church the ministerial are molding religious character. Statesmen today declare that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in these perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. "You in the Church and the Church in you" form a combination for good. Be a regular CHURCHGOER and a daily BIBLE READER.
